Because when don't you want to see the Mandalorian nodding in approval? These prints require no supports and print in a few hours! Great decoration for your desk or work space. This model was remixed from the model found here on Thingiverse by Barbarian3D.

There are a few things I want to change about it to make it better, which I will do in the next few days!

Future of the Mandalorian Bobblehead:

- Add additional spring variations
- Remove material around head to provide larger range of motion
- Edit model for better supportless printing

Required Parts/Tools for Assembly:

- 3D Printed Parts
 - 1x - Mandalorian Bobblehead Body
 - 1x - Mandalorian Bobblehead Head
 - 1x - Mandalorian Bobblehead Spring
- Tools (Optional)
 - Super Glue

Assembly Instructions:

Simply insert the spring end with the flat side into the helmet (making sure the slanted end is in the correct orientation), then insert the slanted end into the body! The hole in the helmet may need a bit of cleaning up based on how well your printer prints the overhangs. You can add some super glue to ensure that nothing comes undone, but it should fit snug.

As with any of my models, feel free to message me with any questions or suggestions for improving the design. I'd also love to see if you make this or alter it in any way :)
