This was a fun one - definitely has some DK vibes so I made a version of him carrying one of my barrels. Overall this was more work with textured brushes and doing poses. I still need to work on dynamic attack poses and angry facial expressions. I didn't do a lot on this model in terms of draw and inflate beyond a few touch ups - it could have had more creasing between fingers and toes etc... but overall I think it turned out nice.

While working on this one I discovered that if you scale the model before applying to pose you will get weird effects so this is the reason for crouch 1 and crouch 2 - I had intended for his hands to be on the baseplate for both but crouch1 still looked ok.
